Ycare à l'école - Ycare at School written by Élodie Crépel, illustrated by Fanny Vella

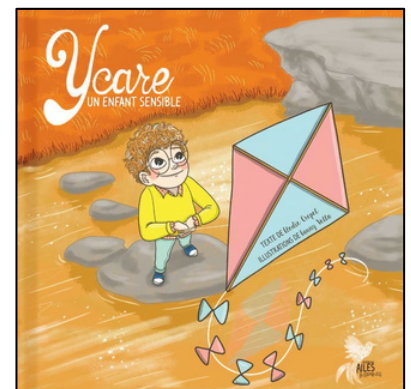

2018 - 56 pages - Ailes et Graines - 4-10 ans/yo

At School with Ycare is a benevolent children's book written to prevent bullying at school and facilitate tolerance and respect of one another. It is composed of two stories for children, parents and school professionals, an ideal tool to discuss and help prevent certain difficulties. Accepting singularity and being tolerant are at the heart of the first story "What animal are you?". The second story "A captain's superpower" talks about the issue of bullying et stresses benevolence, communication and emotions. It provides great tools to better communicate as a family.

Ycare un enfant sensible - Ycare a Sensitive Child written by Élodie Crépel, illustrated by Fanny Vella

2019- 56 pages - Ailes et Graines - 4-10 ans/yo

Ycare a sensitive child is a children's book that helps hypersensitive children to be gain self-confidence. Hypersensitivity is neither a fault nor a weakness or fragility and it affects 20% of people. How to address this subject with children? How can we make them understand that some children are hypersensitive the same way that others are short or tall? It is a fun learning tool revolving on an important axis : transforming the outlook of what children see like a handicap into a magical superpower.

Fanny Vella is an author and illustrator. She illustrated the "Ycare" series published by Ailes et Graines, as well as a graphic novel about toxic romantic relationships: Le Seuil (Big Pepper).

June et sa famille - June and Her Family written by Élodie Crépel, illustrated by Cévany

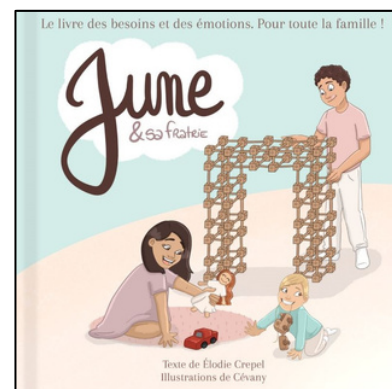

2019 - 49 pages - Ailes et Graines - 2-6 ans/yo

This book sheds light on a family's needs and emotions, children and parents alike, in order to open discussion avenues with benevolence at an early age. June & her family plunges the reader in a warm, peaceful and gentle environment, where all members of the family are mindful of each other. The arrival of a little sister or brother, evenings where everyone is tired, the needs for security and affection are all examples of the themes that are addressed in this book with simple words, straightforward illustrations for nice stories that can be shared.

June et sa fraterie - June and Her Siblings written by Élodie Crépel, illustrated by Cévany

2019- 56 pages - Ailes et Graines - 4-10 ans/yo

The goal of this book is to talk about interactions between siblings with non-violent communication from a very young age. Sharing toys, parents dividing their time with all their children, communication on needs and emotions are the themes addressed in this book with simple words, straightforward illustrations for nice stories that can be shared. And as a bonus, a family mediator gives us some "chat cards" to help deal with sibling conflicts.

Cévany is the author and illustrator of several books published with Ailes et Graines that aim to help children address tolerance, diversity, inclusion and ecology.

Illustrator and author, Daisy is a joyful and optimistic artist who wields her art with humor and poetry to convey nice messages. She worked as a nurse for a few years before going back to her first love: drawing. She has an art-therapy degree and is the committed mother of two children, very active in the fight against discriminations in school.

Come discover extraordinarily ordinary children!

When we talk about school, we mainly talk about children. Children who come with their backgrounds, cultures, dreams, needs, skills and also with their differences. What if we considered these differences as specificities that have their rightful place in school and not as handicaps? In this book 14 characters all have their own singularity : dyslexia (and other dys troubles), handicap, social and cultural differences, hypersensitivity, gifted children etc.

Each particularity has a definite color that helps underline all the differences without bringing any judgment in the process. Every child can identify with one or more of the characters and identify his or her siblings, family, friends and classmates etc.

The Book on Our Physical Differences is a children's book that aims to convey the richness of diversity to children. Handicap, skin colors, hair styles, weight, height... There is no "standard" body and everyone has an appearance that is their own. How can we help children be aware of this tolerance? They all have their own outlook on the world and that is precisely where differences begin. The book invites children to take their time and find their rhythm to watch the illustrations. As they evolve and get older, they can find new details to focus on which are all occasions to communicate on the subject of physical differences, handicap, and tolerance. The evolutive aspect of the book offers nice moments of complicity between parents and children and among siblings. A book on tolerance, a book on our appearance, a book to talk about difference.

It is not easy to make children aware of ecology values without making them anxious or making them feel guilty. This book gives a simple and concrete example and helps to show children the consequences of their actions on the planet. Calie is an energetic and enthusiastic young girl. Like a lot of children, she is motivated by her wishes and cravings in the moment. So when she goes out in her little corner of paradise, she leaves the wrapping of her snack on the ground, and gradually this beautiful place is degraded. This story helps to address in a gentle and illustrated manner, the consequences of some of our everyday gestures. With benevolence and no guilt, it raises awareness on ecologic damage. The book also offers simple practical solutions children can implement. It sheds light on a problem but also helps prevention and the development of environmental awareness all the while underlining important values like friendship, solidarity and of course ecology.

YOUNG ADULT NOVELS

THE STARPOINT PROJECT TRILOGY

by Marie Lorna Vaconsin

Tome 1 : La fille aux cheveux rouges Book 1: The Redhaired Girl

08/2020 - 480 pages - Éditions La belle Colère

Pythagoras lives a quiet and predictable life until he meets Foresta, a mysterious red-haired girl, who irritates and attracts him in equal measure. One night, she shows up at his house to tell him that his best friend Louise disappeared. To bring her back, they must pass through the mirror's 'dead angle'. Pyth follows her, never suspecting that he is going to enter a parallel universe.

Tome 2: Le réveil des Adjinns

Book 2: The Adjinns' Awakening

10/2018 - 432 pages - Éditions La belle Colère

Though finally out of his coma, Pythagoras's father roams about as if in a trance. Pyth desperately seeks a means to save him, but a more urgent danger is threatening him: in Foresta's world, the fight over the Sublittoral's resources still rages and a new force appears in this already strained context. The Adjinns, a people capable of creating bridges between two dimensions, are rising up against their age-old enemies - the Safe-Guards.

Tome 3: Le 13ème pêcheur

Book 3: The 13th Fisherman

04/2020 - 430 pages - Éditions La belle Colère

After the great victory won by Pythagoras and the Adjinns, the boy's father finally wakes up from his coma. But the Adjinns are about to invade the huge Forest of Emerlynd, an open-cast penal colony where, for centuries, their brothers have been tortured. On their journey, the three heroes will finally discover the secret that haunts that land at the end of the earth...
